To: Postal Regulatory Commission

From: John R Harwood

The commission should postpone consideration of this service charge, while the country recovers from the pandemic and recession.

The commission should do so in the context of recommending the rejection of the postmaster general's 10-year plan, encouraging approval of the reform act being developed in the House and overall, redirecting the Postal Service to be a service, rather than a business.

The Postal Service is an essential component of our democracy, one that is admired by citizens and implemented by devoted personnel.

Sincerely,

John R Harwood
